INDICATIONS AND USAGE. ZESTRIL, is indicated for the treatment of hypertension. It may be used alone as initial therapy or concentiantly with other classes of antihypertensive agents. In using ZESTRIL, consideration should be given to the fact that another angiotensin converting enzyme inhibitor, captopni, has caused agranulocytosis, particularly in patients with renal impairment or collagen vascular disease, and that available data are insufficient to show that ZESTRIL does not have a similar risk. (See WARNINGS.) COMTRAINDICATIONS. ZESTRIL is contraindicated in patients with a introly of angiotedem rated to previous treatment with an angiotensin converting enzyme inhibitor. WARNINGS. Angiotedems: Angiotedma of the face, extremities, lips, tongue, glottis and/or larny has been reported in patients what ha introl goldensin converting enzyme inhibitor. Including ZESTRIL, in structure and confined to the face and lips the condition has generally resolved disappears. In instances where evalling has been confined to the face and lips the condition has generally resolved disappears. In instances where evalling has been confined to the face and lips the condition has generally resolved in larnygeal edema may be fatal. Where there is Involvement of the brongue, glottlis or Layout. Blood and larnygeal edema may be fatal. Where there is Involvement of the brongue, glottlis or Layout. Blood behave the condition has generally resolved behaviorable. Hypertalemia: Patients should be told not to use salt substitutes containing potassium without consulting their physician. Neutropeaia: Patients should be told to report prompty any indication of infection (eg., sore throat, fever) which may be a sign of neutropenia. MOTE: As with many other drugs, certain advice to patients being treated with SETRIL is warranted. This information is intended to adi in the safe and effective use of this medication. It is not a disclosure of all possible adverse or intended effects. DPUB INTERACTIONS. Hypotension—Patients on Divursite Therapy; Takents on divurcites and especially those in whom divertic therapy servers the salt intended to the program of the salt intended to the therapy with ZESTRIL. The possibility of hypotensive fleets with ZESTRIL. If it is necessary to continue the diuretic or increasing the salt intake prior to initiation of treatment with ZESTRIL. If it is necessary to continue the diuretic initiate therapy with ZESTRIL at a dose of 5 mg daily, and provide close medical supervision after the initial does of at least two hours and until blood pressure has stabilized for at least an additional hour. (See WARNINGS, and DOSAGE and ADMINISTRATION). When a diuretic is added to the therapy of a patient receiving ZESTRIL, and additional analytypertensive effect is usually observed. Studies with ACE inhibitors in combination with diuretics indicate that the dose of the ACE inhibitor can be reduced when it is given with additional patients of the properties of the pr support of blood pressure and renal perfusion with the administration of fluids and pressores as appropriate. Problems associated with prematurity such as patent ductus arteriosus have occurred in association with maternal use of ACE inhibitors, but it is not clear whether they are related to ACE inhibitor, maternal hypertension or the underlying prematurity. Another ACE inhibitor, entallarly, has been removed from the neonatal circulation by perfloreal diaphs and theoretically may be removed by exchange transfusion, although there is no experience with the latter procedure. There is no experience with the latter procedure. There is no experience with either of these procedures for removing isinopril or other ACE inhibitors from the neonatal circulation. Nursing Nothers: Milk of lactating rats contains radioactivity following administration of *CI isinopril. It is not known whether list drug is excreted in human milk. Because many drugs are excreted in human milk, caution should be exercised when ZESTRIL is given to a nursing mother. Padiatric Use: Safety and effectiveness in children have not been established. ADVERSE REACTIONS. ZESTRIL has been found to be generally well tolerated in controlled clinical trials involving 2003 patients and subjects. The most frequent clinical adverse experiences in controlled clinical trials involving all of which were more frequent than in placebo-treated patients. For the most part, adverse experiences were mild and transient in nature. Discontinuation of therapy was required in 60% of patients. In clinical trials, the overall frequency of adverse experiences with controlled to total daily dosage within the recommended therapeutic days are represented sould not be related to total daily dosage within the recommended therapeutic days represented in controlled clinical trials, comparative incidence data are listed in the table below.

We've taken some concrete steps toward making the less exciting parts of your job less of a problem.

Here's what we did.

We developed ways to speed up claims processing and payments. So you can spend more time worrying about patients, and less time worrying about paperwork.

Our new One Call system helps speed up utilization review and preauthorization. So you can get immediate answers to your benefit and eligibility questions with just one call.

And without being transferred or put on hold.

We've also developed a program called Claim Free, which further expedites the reimbursement process by eliminating paper claims for both you and your Medicare subscribers.

We're continuing to make these changes for one simple reason:

The whole point of health care is to take care of people.

And, by taking better care of you, we're doing just that.

When more than a thiazide diuretic is needed

The following is a brief summary only. Before prescribing, see complete prescribing information in Tenex product labeling. Contraindications: Tenex is contraindication a patients with known hypersensitivity to guarfacine hydrochloride. Precautions: General. Like other antihypertensive agents, Tenex (guarfacine hydrochloride) should be used with caution in patients with severe coronary insufficiency, recent myocardial infarction, cerebrovascular disease or chronic renal or hepatic failure. Sedation. Tenex, like other orally active central alpha-2 adrenergic agonists, causes sedation or drowiness, sepocially when beginning therapy. These symptoms are dose-related (see Adverse Reactions). When Tenex is used with other centrally active depressants (such as phonothiazinas behalves contrains a contraint of the contraints and the contraints are contraints and the contraints and the therapy. These symptoms are dose-related (see Adverse Reactions). When Tenex is used with other centrally active depressants (such as phenothiazines, barbiturates, or benzodiazepines), the potential for additive sedative effects should be considered. Rebound. Abrupt cessation of therapy with orally active central alpha-2 adrenergic agonists may be associated with increases (from depressed on-therapy levels) in plasma and urinary catecholamines, symptoms of "nervousness and anxiety" and, less commonly, increases in blood pressure to levels significantly greater than those prior to therapy. Information for Patients. Patients who receive Tenex should be advised to exercise caution when operating dangerous machinery or anonmetion for Patients. Patients who receive Tenex should be advised to exercise caution when operating dangerous machinery or driving motor vehicles until it is determined that they do not become drowsy or dizzy from the medication. Patients should be warmed that their tolerance for alcohol and other CNS depressants may be diminished. Patients should be advised not to discontinue therapy abruptly.

Laboratory Rests. In clinical trials, no clinically relevant laboratory test abnormalities were identified as causally related to drug during short-term treatment with Tenex (guarifacine hydrochloride).

Drug interactions. No specific adverse drug interactions have been identified, but the potential for increased sedation when Tenex is given with other CNS-depressant drugs should be appreciated.

Anticoagulants. Ten patients who were stabilized on oral anticonarisants were given ounfacine. 1-2 mg/day for weeks. No Anticoegulants. Ten patients who were stabilized on oral anticoagulants were given guantiacine, 1—2 mg/day, for 4 weeks. No changes were observed in the degree of anticoagulation. In several well-controlled studies, guantiacine was administered together with diuretics with no drug interactions reported. In the long-term safety studies, Enex was given concomitantly with many drugs without evidence of any interactions. The principal drugs given (number of patients in parentheses) were: cardiac glycosides (115), sedatives and hypnotics (103), coronary vasodilators (32), oral hypoglycemics (45), cough and cold preparations (45), NSAIDs (38), arithyper-lipidemics (29), antigout drugs (24), oral contraceptives (18), bronchodilators (13), insulin (10), and beta blockers (10). Drug/Laboratory Test Interactions. No laboratory test abnormalities related to the use of Tenex (guantiacine hydrochioride) have been identified.

Carcinogeneits, Mutagenesis, impairment of Fertility. No carcinogenic effect was observed in studies of 78 weeks in mice at doses more than 150 times the maximum recommended human dose and 102 weeks in rats at doses more than 100 times the maximum recommended human dose. No adverse effects were observed in fertility studies in male and female rats. Pregnancy Category B. Administration of guarfacine to rats at 70 times the maximum recommended human dose and rabbits at 20 times the maximum recommended human dose resulted in no evidence of impaired fertility or harm to the fetus. Higher doses (100 and 200 times the maximum recommended human dose in rabbits and rats respectively) were associated with reduced fetal survival and maternal toxicity. Rat experiments nave shown using seal toxicity. Rat experiments nave shown using the placenta.

There are, however, no adequate and well-controlled studies in pregnant women. Because animal reproduction studies are not always predictive of human response, this drug should be used during pregnancy only if clearly needed.

Labor and Delivery. Tenex (guartacine hydrochloride) is not recommended in the treatment of acute hypertension associated with toxemia of pregnancy. There is no information available on the effects of guartacine on the course of labor and delivery.

**Nursing Bothers.** It is not known whether Tenex (guartacine hydrochloride) is excreted in human milk. Because many drugs are of guantacine on the course of labor and delivery.

Mursling Mothers. It is not known whether Tenex (guantacine hydrochloride) is excreted in human milk. Because many drugs are excreted in human milk, caution should be exercised when Tenex is administered to a nursing woman. Experiments with rats have shown hat quantacine is excreted in the milk.

administered to a nursing woman. Experiments with rats have shown that guartiacine is excreted in the milk.

**Padiatric Use. Safety and effectiveness in children under 12 years of age have not been demonstrated. Therefore, the use of Tenex in this age group is not recommended.

**Adverse Reactions: Adverse reactions noted with Tenex (guartiacine hydrochloride) are similar to those of other drugs of the central a-2 adrenoreceptor agonist class: dry mouth, sedation (somnotence), weakness (astheria), dizziness, constipation, and impotence. While the reactions are common, most are mild and tend to disappear on continued dosing.

**Skin rash with exfoliation has been reported in a few cases; although clear cause and effect relationships to Tenex could not be established, should a rash occur. Tenex should be discontinued and the patient monitored appropriately.

See complete prescribing information in SK&F LAB CO. litera-ture or PDR. The following is a brief summary.

Contraindications: 'Tagamet' is contraindicated for patients known to have hypersensitivity to the product.

Precautions: Rare instances of cardiac arrhythmias and hypotension have been reported following the rapid administration of Tagamet (brand of cimetidine hydrochloride) Injection by intravenous bolus.

Tagamer'h as been reported to reduce the hepatic metabolism of warfarin-type anticoagulants, phenytoin, propranolol, chlordiazepoxide, diazepam, certain tricyclic antidepressants, lidocaine, theophylline and metronidazole. Clinically significant effects have been reported with the warfarin anticoagulants; therefore, close monitoring of protrombin time phenytoni, lidocaine and theophylline has also been reported to produce

Data beyond ten days are not available. (Note: All patients receiving theophylline should be monitored appropriately, regardless of concomitant drug therapy)

In a 24-month toxicity study in rats, at dose levels approximately 8 to 48 times the recommended human dose, benign Leydig cell tumors were seen. These were common in both the treated and control groups, and the incidence became significantly higher only in the aged rats receiving Pregnancy Category B: Reproduction studies have been performed in rats, rabbits and mice at doses up to 40 times the normal human dose and have revealed no evidence of impaired ferbility or harm to the fetus due to Tagamet'. There are, however, no adequate and well-controlled stud-ies in pregnant women. Because animal reproductive studies are not al-ways predictive of human response, this drug should be used during pregnancy only if clearly needed.

Lack of experience to date precludes recommending 'Tagamet' for use in children under 16 unless anticipated benefits outweigh potential risks; generally, nursing should not be undertaken by patients taking the drug since dimedidine is secreted in human milk.

Adverse Reactions: Diarrhea, dizziness, somnolence, headache. Reversible confusional states (e.g., mental confusion, agitation, psychosis, depression, anxiety, hallucinations, disorientation), predominantly in severely ill patients, have been reported. Reversible impotence in patients with pathological hypersecretory disorders receiving Tagamer, particularly in high doses for at least 12 months, has been reported. The incidence of impotence in large-scale surveillance studies at regular doses has not exceeded that commonly reported in the general population. Gynecomastia has been reported in patients treated for one month or longer. Decreased white blood cell counts in Tagamer' treated patients (approximately) I per 100,000 patients), including agranulocytosis (approximately 3 per million patients), have been reported, including a few reports of recurrence on rechallenge. Most of these reports were in patients who had serious concomitant illnesses and received drugs and/or treatment known to produce neutropenia. Thrombocytopenia (approximately 3 per million patients) and, very rarely, cases of aplastic anemia have also been reported. Increased serum transaminase has been reported. Reversible adverse hepatic effects, cholestatic or mixed cholestatic-hepatocellular in riminor pacteris, and, rely ristry, usass of squares a terima revolve as observed increased serum transaminase has been reported. Reversible adverse hepatic effects, cholestatic or mixed cholestatic-hepatocellular in nature, have been reported rarely. Because of the predominance of cholestatic features, severe parenchymal injury is considered highly unlikely. A single case of biopsy-proven periporal hepatic fibrosis in a patient receiving Tagamet' has been reported. Increased plasma creatinine has been reported as the same passible and have been reported. Increased plasma creatinine has been reported and A-V heart blook have been reported with H-receptor antagonists. Reversible arthralgia, myalgia and evacerbation of joint symptoms in patients with preexisting arthritis have been reported or polymyositis have been reported, but no causal relationship has been established. Mild rash and, very rarely, cases of severe generalized skin reactions (e.g. Sevens-Johnson syndrome, epidermal neorolysis, eythema multilorme, exfoliative dematitis and generalized exfoliative erythrodermal have been reported with H-receptor antagonists.
